Less effort, more fun

ENJOY THE LANDSCAPE

In 2014 the Vineyard Landscape of Piedmont: Langhe-Roero and Monferrato became UNESCO World Heritage

The Langhe is an Italian region located in the south of Piedmont, in the province of Cuneo. This is a hilly area known for producing red wines. Among these wines you can find Barolo, Nebbiolo, Barbaresco and Dolcetto d'Alba. If the 'Bassa Langa' is important for wines and for the white truffle, 'Alta Langa' instead is the area where you can find woods and the hazelnut cultivation. The Langhe can offer different and evocative landscapes in all seasons. What always remains the same in all seasons is cooking. There are many good restaurants where you can taste the traditional Piedmontese dishes prepared with the excellent products of the area. And after a good lunch you can walk among the villages reaching castles and admiring unexpected views.
